Making Faces!

Lunch and Talk
Thursday, April 7, 12-1pm,
Duke Institute for Brain Sciences
Join visiting illustrator Hanoch Piven for a conversation about facial perception and the importance of creativity and play in work and life.

Hands-on Workshop
Friday, April 8, 1-3 pm,
Nasher Museum of Art
Join Piven to make faces with found materials in his colorful and witty style.

Hanoch Piven’s portraits using found materials have been featured over the last 25 years in Time, Newsweek, Rolling Stone, and many European publications. His book, What Presidents are Made Of was chosen by Time as one of the best books of 2004. In-demand as a speaker and workshop leader, he cultivates creative communication among students, educators, executives, and professional leaders.
